• Artist

Hong Sungchul (b.1969) graduated from Hongik University's Department of Sculpture (1994) and obtained a master's degree in Fine Art / Integrated Media from the California Institute of the Arts (2001). He projected the images to the non-traditional sculptural material 'String' with a certain order and rules, and his work can be viewed from various angles. By transferring the image to a thin, elastic 'string' and placing it in multiple layers, the elastic string and the illusion created by the gaps enable a new formative experience. The scenes in which various hands are entangled to express the subject of the work by representing the society where people communicate with each other. This gives the work a deeper echo and makes it look more attractive.

• Explanation

String_mirror_0930 divides the back of a person into two, but it is a back view of a person wearing a white shirt and changing his clothes before shaking hands. Spaced pieces of art mean that you need a reasonable distance in human relationships. Through the work, the artist recognizes that a perfect relationship is impossible, and it implies that it takes considerable effort to reach that relationship, but sometimes it is impossible to close the gap.
