• Artist

Park Meena graduated from the Department of Painting at the Rhode Island University of Art, USA (1997) and obtained a master's degree from the Department of Painting at Hunter University Graduate School (1999). Park Meena explores the production, distribution, consumption methods, and environment of colors/images that surround us and expresses them with the form of painting. Her work looks like abstract painting or design work that uses art and language as formative elements. However, it can be said that her work is an analogical and metaphorical painting in the sense that she presents a point of view that distinguishes the structure of society and culture through color and shape.

• Explanation

It is a work made by pasting three canvases. It was produced using the pictograms used in previous works. Based on pan balances in the center, it is composed of symbols frequently encountered in daily life such as men, women, umbrellas, elevators, arrows, flowers, and carts. Outwardly, the work is simple and graphic elements stand out. It looks like the result of an abstract painting or design work that uses art and language as formative elements, but it is a visual medium that distinguishes the structure of society and culture through visual media. present a point of view.
