- Artist

Jung Jihyun (b.1983) graduated from Chung-Ang University's Department of Photography (2010) and obtained a master's degree (2016). He later completed his Ph.D. program in the Department of Arts at the same graduate school (2019). Jung Jihyun works to share and record memories about the city's architecture through her photos. His artist intervenes formative in the construction site and constructs his art form by temporarily transforming elements or parts of the architecture. The walls were painted red to express that destructive sites were places of life in the past, or to transform the space by installing variable structures with building materials. What is revealed nakedly in this way is the 'inside', neither inside nor outside, of buildings we have never seen before.

- Explanation

The artist witnessed the moment when the building collapses and captures the scene on camera. He first discovers a building that is about to be demolished and arranges a location for the filming. He becomes acquainted with the general manager, construction company employees, and daily workers on the construction site to hire them. In doing so, he meticulously searches for possible filming locations and shoots ruins there. The work has a double meaning by juxtaposing a building that has already been almost destroyed and a building that is still intact but is about to collapse.
