• Artist

Lee Jinju(B.1980) graduated from the Department of Eastern Painting at Hongik University (2003) and completed a master's course at its graduate school. She has been working as an exclusive artist at Arario Gallery and works in Seoul. One of the most important concepts in understanding Lee Jinju's work is 'Jeonsinsajo' which expresses not only the appearance but also the characters' spirit through the portrait. She applies this concept not only to the main characters but also to the objects she encounters in daily life. After well composed these concepts on screen, she applies the methodology of the 'Jeonsinsajo' through appropriate techniques and forms. As a result, the artist creates a new contemporary Korean painting that only she can.

• Explanation

A woman in pantyhose is lying down. The stockings that often appear in the work are thin and transparent, but they are much warmer than expected. It looks weak, but it tightens the body. But at the same time, it gets hurt easily. Stockings are a minimal piece of protective clothing for the body, but they don't really provide protection. Jinju Lee often uses stockings in her works because it fits the character's sensibility well.
